

Indian spectators attacked the homes of the Indian team after they lost in the semifinals

The two best performances of the semi-final came from England's openers. As a result, India lost the match. Big games of T20 international cricket frequently depend on individual talent. After that, anger increased in India, and authorities secured the Indian team's home after fans attacked Rohit Sharma's home.

Once two batsmen of Jos Buttler and Alex Hales' caliber get going, the Indian squad finds it difficult to stop them. However, India should not let their record prevent them from considering how their own performance contributed to the nature of the defeat.

India makes an untimely bat blunder

A competitive score in a World Cup semifinal is 168/6. But it's not a great one, especially not against a team with the firepower of England and on a good batting surface like the Adelaide Oval.

On the other hand, the Pakistani team defeated England in the semifinals a day earlier and advanced to the T20 world championship final. India became more incensed due to Pakistan's participation in the final of the T20 World Cup.
